assassin be returned to the victim's family. If he was not known, however, the djema, or assembly of notables, designated a man from the tribe to go make himself prisoner in his place. There is no example of the hostage's having been put to death in such a case. Serious cases were usually judged by the amenokal, who was aided by four assessors, two taken from each side.

/296/ Suicide. -- Suicide is as rare as murder among the Tuareg. When one occurs, the person who committed suicide is abandoned on the ground unburied, and the camp is moved and abandoned forever. The Koran disapproves of suicide, and the Tuareg regard the suicide as if he had never existed and must never speak of him again.

Two crimes are blamed on the suicide: 1) doing away with oneself, which is not permitted for a human being who owes his life to God; 2) offending God in this way.

The soul of a suicide cannot find refuge and wanders forever. It likes to return to the spot where it left its mortal covering, and people claim that they can hear it nearby in the evening and that it makes so much noise that it is impossible to sleep.

Death. -- The Tuareg do not fear death. When one of them sees that he is dying, he gathers his relatives around him and gives his last instructions. Then, according to the religious principles which he may have neglected during his life but which he recalls at the final moment, he pronounces the "Fatika /fatiha? Ed./" or if he does not have the strength for that, he raises the index finger of his right hand and breathes his last.

The body is immediately washed in lukewarm water and wrapped in a shroud into which aromatic herbs are put, while the slaves go to dig the grave on a neighboring high spot. The grave is made of a little trench with two stages such as the Arabs use. The body is carried on a kind of stretcher ans taken to the burial place, head first, by four men. It is then placed on its right side with the face turned in the direction of Mecca.

173 643 [634] Talak. This tradition is acknowledged as true by certain Tuareg of Ayr, but all Kel Ferwan Tuareg claim that the Sultan has never had any right over the country of Ayr. They state that his Tuareg title of Amenukal has nothing to do with akal (i.e. "the land"), and that the country of Ayr from the remote past until now has been owned by the drum-chief of the Kel Ferwan group (cf. p. 421). However, if we turn to the information given on this subject by the Agadez Chronicle, we learn that until the establishment of the Sultanry it had been customary for the powerful noble tribes to claim a tax of horses from the caravans which passed their particular territories. The first Sultan of Ayr sent a letter to learned people of an Islamic country to ask whether such taxes were lawful or unlawful. And he was answered that these taxes were to be considered good because those who received the taxes protected the very important caravan road between Timbuktu and Cairo. The taxes should therefore be collected by the Sultan who again should give them to the Tuareg (Urvoy 1934, p. 155). Before the arrival of the French the Sultan had the right to dues from goods passing through Agadez, which is mentioned already by Leo (Leo Africanus III, 828 f.), and he was entitled to dues from the Bilma salt trade and to annual taxes from the sedentary Negroes of Ingal and Tegidda-n-tésemt.

643 The tradition which says that the Sultan descend patrilineally from the Sultan of Constantinople and matrilineally from a slave woman clearly indicates the position of the Sultan in Tuareg society. The Sultan is looked down upon by fair-skinned Tuareg because of his black skin, but he is also endowed with prestige because of his supposed descendance from the Sultan of Constantinople.

643 778 [768] [765] A certain elbaraka or benediction is ascribed to him, and all people who want to greet the Sultan must remove their sandals. The Sultan is always buried in his palace at Agadez, and it is said that if he was buried outside there would be a great risk that his subjects would dig up his skeleton to use part of it for amulets. It is also said that the Sultan preserves a part of the skeleton of his predecessor for amulets. This must be viewed in connection with the particular power of elbaraka attached to the Sultan, and it is important to note that the Sultan is believed to possess an unusual power of fertility, which is secured and maintained until his death by means of certain medicines acquired from the Sudan. Thus it seems as though the Sultan possesses some of the qualities of the Sudanese divine kings, but in practice he has little power. The Agadez Chronicle refers to Sultans who acted as war leaders of all Ayr Tuareg against foreign Tuareg groups or the forces of Sudanese states, but within Ayr it was difficult for a Sultan to maintain his power over certain warlike groups of pastoral Tuareg. Leo Africanus writes that the inhabitants of the desert depose and elect Sultans whenever they like (Leo Africanus III, p. 828), and so it has been right up to modern times. Many Sultans have only reigned for very short periods.

631 634 648 Although the Sultan is the supreme chief of all Ayr Tuareg, he does not have the same relationship to all Tuareg groups, for many of them are placed directly under the supreme chief of the Kel Ewey group known as the Anesṭafidet. The Anesṭafidet originally lived at Asodey in Central Ayr, but he now lives in Agadez where he holds a prominent position as a chief. Like most Kel Ewey he is black-skinned and related to the Hausa population of the Southlands, where he lives for a part of the year with the important task of organizing the trade between Ayr and the south. The Anesṭafidet has always been closely attached to the sedentary Hausa of the Southlands, and is said to have part of his family living at a small village named Blanko between Tanut and Zinder. A new Anesṭafidet may even be elected from the members of this village. The particular connection between the Anesłafidet and the sedentary peoples of the Sudan is very natural in view of the fact that the Kel Ewey Tuareg nowadays, as in the past, engage much in caravan trading with the south. The name of Anesłafidet is derived from the tribe Kel Tafidet – one of the noble Kel Ewey tribes which immigrated to Ayr about the 14th century A.D. The Anesłafidet has always been a very important chief, and the Kel Ewey Tuareg, though very mixed with the ancient sedentary population of Ayr Negroes, were for periods in the past very important politically. To-day the Anesłafidet is the most important chief of Ayr after the Sultan, and it is said that, like a deceased Sultan, a deceased Anesłafidet should be buried in his house. The Anesłafidet is treated with respect by all Ayr Tuareg, who take off their sandals when greeting him, and at the beginning of the holy Friday (that is on Thursday night) the professional musicians of Agadez, when they have made music at the Sultan's palace, go to Anesłafidet's residence and then to the ministers of the Sultan.

The Kel Ewey Tuareg, who live predominantly in and around the villages of the eastern and most mountainous part of the Ayr Massif, form the majority of the people placed directly under the command of the Anesłafidet. According to figures given by Nicolas for tribes and villages of the Kel Ewey their total number seems now to be about 8000 (cf. Nicolas 1950b, p. 465 ff.). But placed under the Anesłafidet are also the pastoral Tuareg group known as Kel Tamat. Formerly it had its own drum-chief (ettebel) who was also the supreme chief of the Ikezkezen Tuareg. The group of Kel Tamat, with the Ikezkezen, judged by the figures for some of the tribes (cf. Nicolas 1950b, p. 471 f.), comprise nowadays about 4000 individuals most of whom originally lived west of the true Kel Ewey.

The Kel Tamat do not form a drum-group nowadays. In the past their drum-chief was elected by tribes within the drum-group, but he had to be installed ceremoniously by the Anesłafidet who presented him with a large headcloth. All people of the Anesłafidet have to recognize him as their supreme judicial authority. But the Anesłafidet, who is elected by people of the ancient noble Kel Ewey tribes, is submitted to the authority of the Sultan who also installs the Anesłafidet ceremoniously.

Most Ayr Tuareg who are not placed under the Anesłafidet are collectively referred to as the Kel Amenukal, that is "the people of the Amenukal (or Sultan)". Most of these people are pastoralists though some sedentary or semi-sedentary people are also placed in the Sultan's group. The important Tuareg groups placed directly under the Sultan are the following:—

The Itesen with the Immikitan most of whom left the Massif long before the arrival of the French. In the past both groups formed politically very important drum-groups, and though they were very few in number throughout the 19th century they were nevertheless politically important, as without them a Sultan could not be elected and installed.

The Kel Faday in the region of Ingal consist of a noble tribe and eleven tribes of vassals. The Kel Faday constituted throughout the 19th century a politically important drum-group though it was very small. Their total number according to Nicolas is now 2341 (Nicolas 1950b, p. 474).

The Kel Ferwan comprise tribes in the western parts of the Massif including the regions of Agadez, and also south of the Massif in Dumergu. They number about 5000.

The Kel Geres Tuareg live in the Southlands around Madawa most of the year but visit Southern Ayr west of Agadez in the rainy season (cf. p. 7, 431 f.). Properly speaking they are not now recognized
